Blackinton®

Safety and security

are built into every badge we make.

It's not hard to imagine the consequences of stolen or counterfeit law enforcement badges falling into the wrong hands.

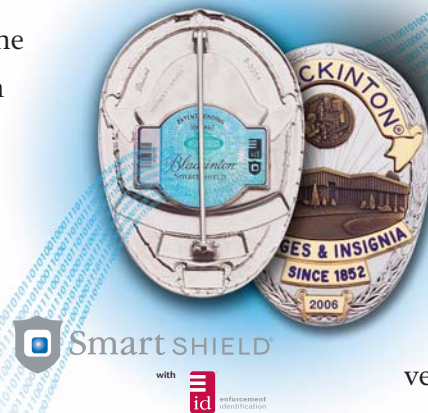

In every case where this has happened, the possibility of local or national security being compromised has arisen. Blackinton® has always controlled the safety and security of your badges from the initial design stages right through shipping. Now, we can even offer unprecedented control for your badges even after they leave our building.

SECURITY INSIDE THE FACTORY.

Every step of the manufacturing process is handled under one roof - ours. From creating the original design, to shaping the metal, to adding the finishing touches, it's all Blackinton®, all the way. Every design and every badge die is safely stored within our secure facility. And badge orders are started only when initiated by the department or agency authorized to do so.

SECURITY INSIDE THE BADGE.

Now, Blackinton® has used the latest wireless technology to add an even higher level of security for those who require it. Our new, patent-pending SmartShield™ system actually embeds a tamper-proof RFID microchip into each badge using a unique identification code that validates the badge and even verifies the wearer. This option allows for unprecedented badge control, tracking, and ID. Visit www.blackinton.com for all the details on SmartShield™.

This level of reassurance and security is unsurpassed anywhere else in the industry. But there's more.

Blackinton® knows how important it is that every badge be made to your exact specifications. To demonstrate our commitment to this, here's a special offer. If your badge contract calls for a heavy gold plate (HGE) finish, we'll take one of your existing badges and have it tested by an independent lab - at our expense - to make sure it matches your specifications. If it doesn't, we'd welcome the chance to let you see what we can do.

There is no safer, more secure place to have your badges made than Blackinton®. All of this adds up to peace of mind and the greatest value for your money.
